James Talarico's Question

How much does the rampant sexism, racism, ageism, murder in the streets bother you?

"Hm moderately so"

Well then

Vote for your moderate candidates

Last Monday I walked five hours - 15 miles - round trip, leaving in below freezing temperature, to a canvassing event at the Pearl Brewery in San Antonio, only to be insulted, ignored, and offended by the event organizer. Total turnout: me, two organizers, and one other man, who stayed he had to cut out early. Apparently the rude woman declined to use ample parking one block away for free, and because of this was concerned about having to pay $13 for parking.

As I told her that I am a full-time author and ASCAP registered songwriter and publisher with over 900 published literary works and five albums on my own label, growing a dedicated, like-minded anti-fascist audience by an average of 100-300 per day on BlueSky - and that the main focus of my chosen profession currently is spreading the story of my missing fiancé and friend of forty years who disappeared after trying to escape the white supremacist narcissistic abuser she was living with in Lake Orion, Michigan - she noticably lost interest and physically turned her back to me. Keep in mind, there was no one else there at the time. The coffee shop employees listed on mobilize.us as a rendezvous point were not aware of their mention.

When finally passed 1/6 cut size flyers, a stack dropped. No one made any movement to pick them up besides me, despite not being closest. How disappointing the bullet points were in light of the lifelong governmental corruption that has affected me and my family my whole life and, obviously, continues to do so. A cap on the price of insulin is a sick joke to someone whose loved one may have been murdered by a Rush Limbaugh clone whose local police allows him to continue his fantasy that women are property of men.

I will be voting for Jasmine Crockett if I am still in the state of Texas, where I was born and have lived forty-three of forty-seven years.

This has been copied and pasted to my pages on DeviantArt, Substack, Medium, and BlueSky.

Yeah, you can unsubscribe me.